Overview of Nanjing

Nanjing , located in the downstream Yangtze River drainage basin and Yangtze River Delta economic zone, is the capital of Jiangsu Province and a city with a prominent place in Chinese history and culture. Known as the “Capital of Six Dynasties”, for almost two thousand years Nanjing has been a center of commerce, politics, and culture.

With an urban population of over eight million ( 2013 ) , Nanjing is the second-largest commercial center in the East China region following Shanghai. It has been ranked the seventh in the evaluation of "Cities with Strongest Comprehensive Strength" issued by the National Statistics Bureau, and second in the evaluation of cities with most sustainable development potential in the Yangtze River Delta. It has also been awarded the titles of Habitat Scroll of Honor of China, Special Award of UN Habitat Scroll of Honor, National Civilized City, and Nationally Designated Garden City.

Nanjing, with a total land area of 6,598 square kilometers, is situated in one of the largest economic zones of China, the Yangtze River Delta, which is part of the downstream Yangtze River drainage basin. Nanjing borders Yangzhou to the northeast, one town downstream when following the north bank of the Yangtze, Zhenjiang to the east, one town downstream when following the south bank of the Yangtze, and Changzhou to the southeast. On its western boundary is Anhui Province.

Nanjing has a humid subtropical climate and is under the influence of the East Asia Monsoon. The four seasons are distinct here, with damp conditions seen throughout the year, very hot and muggy summer, cold, and damp winter, and in between, spring and autumn are of reasonable length.

Surrounded by the Yangtze River and mountains, Nanjing also enjoys beautiful natural scenery. Natural lakes such as Xuanwu

Lake and Mochou Lake are located in the center of the city and are easily accessible to the public, while the tiger-like Stone Mountain is crouching in the west of the city, hence the name “the Zhong Mountain, a dragon curling, and the Stone Mountain, a tiger crouching”.

In recent years, Nanjing has been developing its economy, commerce, industry, as well as city construction. In 2013 the city's GDP was RMB 801 billion ( 3rd in Jiangsu ), and GDP per capita was RMB 98,171. The current industry of the city basically inherited the characteristics of the 1960s, with electronics, cars, petrochemical, iron and steel, and power as the “Five Pillar Industries”. Some representative big state-owned firms are Panda Electronics, and Yangzi Petrochemical. The tertiary industry also regained prominence, accounting for 54 percent of the GDP of the city. Nanjing ranks the third in the 2014 China Regional Central City Competitiveness Evaluation, right behind Shenzhen and Guangzhou. The city is also vying for foreign investment against neighboring cities in the Yangtze River Delta, and so far a number of famous multinational firms, such as Iveco, Sharp, have established their lines there.

Nanjing is the national important gateway city, urban center in east China and important industry city, the Yangtze River international shipping logistics center, riverside ecological livable city, UN-habitat special honor city. In August 2014, successfully hosted the 2nd Youth Olympic Games.

City Tour Guide

Dr. Sun Yat-sen's Mausoleum

Dr. Sun Yat-sen's Mausoleum , which is situated on the southern slope of the Zijinshan Mountain in the eastern suburb of Nanjing , is the mausoleum for Dr. Sun Yat-sen ( 1866-1925 ) , who was a pioneer of Chinese democratic revolution. The entire layout, covering 80,000 square meters, takes the shape of a giant bell and symbolizes the meaning that 'Pave the path for the whole world to Tao'.

It takes nearly three years from January, 1926 to 1929 to complete the construction of the main building of Dr. Sun Yat-sen's Mausoleum. When looking at the Mausoleum from the angle of a high land, it is easy for us to find that the construction is just like a lying giant bell. The Statue of Dr. Sun Yat-sen at the root of the hill is exactly like the steeple of the bell, and the square which is shaped like half-moon represents for the arc of the bell, while the vaulted roof of the mausoleum at the top of the hill is just the smooth round clock pendulum of the giant bell. The giant bell contains the meaning that 'Awaken the people to construct the Republic of China'.

The combination of the buildings, the use of the buildings' color, the presentation of the architecture resources and the way to polish details of this massive construction turn out to be a masterpiece. Also, its harmoniously formed color enhances the grave atmosphere of the mausoleum. With its profound meaning and grand momentum, it is no doubt that the mausoleum is called “The Best Mausoleum in Chinese Modern Architectural History”.

With vast flatland in front of the mausoleum and towering mountains behind it, the scene of the mausoleum is just magnificent. The landscapes that form the attraction shows not only the deep respect and strong nostalgia from domestic and foreign donators, but also great value of art, because they are all the masterpieces of those architects.

Ming Xiaoling Tomb

The Ming Xiaoling Tomb is a site of world cultural heritage.

Located at the foot of Wanzhu Peak of Dulong Mound on the southern slope of Zhongshan Mountain, the Ming Xiaoling Tomb is the tomb of Zhu Yuanzhang, the first emperor of the Ming Dynasty, and his wife Mrs. Ma. The construction of the Tomb started in 1381, lasting over 40 years, and has a history of more than 600 years.

Ming Xiaoling Tomb is the biggest imperial tomb in Nanjing, as well as one of the biggest in Chinese history. The construction pattern of it had been seen as the standard of over 20 imperial tombs in the more than 500-year-long history of the Ming and Qing dynasties, and this makes itself a special position in the history of Chinese imperial tombs. Also, the status makes it the first-ever tomb of Ming and Qing's imperial tombs.

Located in an environment which owns beautiful landscape, with undulating mountains and flowing water around it, the scenery of Ming Xiaoling Tomb can be seen as a perfect match of both culture and nature.

It has massive framework, while it is structured very rigorously. At that time, the main construction of the tomb was surrounded by a circle of red wall, and the circumference of the red wall is 2.25 kilometers. The tomb had been destructed heavily several times in the Qing Dynasty. Till the September of the third year of emperor Tongzhi's governess, when Zeng Guofan ordered by emperor came to worship it, the tomb was then being restored.

In 1961, Ming Xiaoling Tomb was claimed to be one of the first important units of cultural relics under the national protection. At the 27th World Heritage Convention in July, 2003, Ming Xiaoling Tomb was added into the World Heritage List and became a member of world heritage.
